

MINERS CAUGHT LIKE RATS IN A TRAP

BOTTOM OF SWAMP GIVES WAY KILLING 65 MEN IN MINE SHAFT

Water and Muck Swirls Bodies Through Slough To Depths—Rescue Body Is Barred By Wall of Mud and Rock—Hope Is Shattered As Whole Pit Is Flooded—Inspectors Among Victims—Relatives Rush To Scene At Ishpeming, Michigan, Shaft.

Between 45 and 65 miners are believed to have lost their lives Wednesday, when the bottom of a swamp, under which the Barnes Hecker iron mine near Ishpeming, Michigan, had been extended, dropped into the shaft Wednesday.

Deepened by recent heavy rains the bottom of the swamp gave way and a section 300 feet long and 200 feet wide fell into the mine, trapping the men at work. The mass of slough is believed to have caught most of the men on the first and third levels.

Officials of the mine were checking Wednesday night to ascertain the exact number of men on duty at the time of the disaster. From 45 to 65 usually are employed, but it was not known if the entire shift reported for duty Wednesday.

W. E. Hill, state mining inspector, and William Tibbett, an official of the mining company, were among those trapped. They were inspecting the shaft.

The disaster occurred shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Persons reported having heard a terrific swishing thud as the huge section of mud and water fell.

Rushing to the gaping mud hole, they saw the flood swirl about the first level, 125 down, and then force itself thru the outlets to the next level. As the lower reaches were flooded the mud arose again to the level and, fed by the seepage from the surrounding district, had flooded the entire mine as well as an adjoining shaft to which there was an outlet from the Barnes Hecker shaft.

Hope was held for a while that the men may have been able to reach this adjoining shaft thru the outlet, but as the mud and water poured thru this tunnel and flooded the shaft, what was believed to be the last chance of escape was cut off.

The Barnes-Hecker mine is 1,060 feet deep and has three levels. The swamp bottom dropped into the first level and slowly forced its way from one level to the next.

Hundreds of persons were gathered about the mouth of the shaft Wednesday night. In the group were wives, children and relatives of the trapped men, many of whom refused to give up hope that in a miraculous way their loved ones had escaped death.

A score of mine rescue teams responded to first calls for aid from nearby cities in the iron mining region, but were powerless to be of any assistance. The much-flooded shaft was impossible to penetrate two hours after the cave-in.

A few persons on the mine surface at the time of the disaster made their way to the edge of the pit and reported having seen the bodies of a half dozen of men swept thru the slough to the lower level.

Mine officials rigged up bailing apparatus and made a start at drawing the water out of the mine, but stated there was not the slightest possibility of recovering the bodies for weeks. They had not decided if they would continue their attempts at clearing the shaft beyond the first level.

The Barnes-Hecker disaster probably will be the worst of its kind in the Lake Superior mining region. Four years ago 41 men drowned in the Milford mine in this district, under conditions similar to those of Wednesday's disaster. The drowning of 28 men in the Mansfield, near Crystal Falls, 25 years ago, was the worst previous accident on the Iron Range.

The Barnes-Hecker mine was known as a "wet" shaft, due to the amount of water seepage and the ore was of the "soup" variety.

Volcanoes Mar Geysers

In New Zealand are a number of geysers worthy of visiting, and in past years they were more beautiful than today. Volcanic eruptions in 1886 destroyed the terraces around the geysers in many instances. Iceland also has some notable geysers, and, strangely enough, their waters are the hottest in Europe.

Columbus—Mrs. Lola Marquis, her brother and William Erwin were rescued from a second story apartment of a burning building here by Fire Chief Ijams and two firemen who carried them down ladders.

Washington C. H.—A labor shortage was reported by industries here. The Baker-Tie preserving plant needs 40 laborers, the Sunlight creamery is seeking 60 women workers and the Washington Foundry company also needs help. Increased business was given as the cause of the labor shortage.

Marysville—The proposed water rate has been cut 11 per cent thru an agreement between the Marysville Water company and a citizen's committee. The reduction was recommended by the public utilities commission.

Cleveland—Mrs. M. E. Goddard, who disappeared from a theater lobby was found wandering aimlessly today after police and her husband had searched for three hours. Goddard said his wife had been injured in an accident three weeks ago and since had suffered from amnesia.

Steubenville—The trial of Blaine D. Carter, deposed chief of police on charges of neglect of duty will not open in common pleas court as scheduled tomorrow. Judge Jay S. Paisley said he saw no need of putting the county to the expense of the trial since the civil service commission upheld Carter's suspension.

Cincinnati—The family of T. H. McCord, of Milford, narrowly escaped death when their automobile ran wild on Webster pike here and overturned.

Columbus—Mrs. Catherine Curl, here, who recently chloroformed to death her nine year old son and then attempted to take her own life will not stand trial for murder.

Physicians have examined her and have declared that she is insane, rendering her irresponsible for her acts. Prosecutor King said that she will be given a hearing in probate court and if found insane will be committed to the Lima State hospital for the criminally insane.

SUCCESSFUL COUNTY FAIR AT LANCASTER

Board Will Make a Profit of $5,000—No Rain Insurance
Taken This Year.

The Fairfield county fair board will realize in round numbers $5,000 profit on this year's fair, according to figures of Treasurer Mr. Amos Thomas.

This year's receipts show a net profit of approximately $10,000. However, the sum of $2,000 has been paid for the permanent wiring of the grounds and a like amount for night attractions, also $1,000 was expended for the improvement of the buildings. The board saved $750 by not taking out the usual rain insurance. This was a good move, as the rain of 1925 spoiled the fair and yet owing to certain stipulations in the policy, there was not sufficient moisture fell at stated intervals to make collection on policy possible.

Old English Superstition

A superstition once existed in East Anglia that the path over which a body had been carried to burial—called the Bier way—was unlucky. CEDAR HILL BOOTLEGGERS ARE SENTENCED

Given From One to Five Years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

A sentence of from one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $500 each was the penalty handed down by Judge Shell in Lancaster Wednesday to Russell and Oscar Young for illegal manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

And thus a lucrative manufacturing business comes to an abrupt end. One of the most complete stills ever discovered around these parts was brought into court as evidence after the Young brothers were caught red handed while engaged in their unlawful business. The still was cleverly concealed under a tent which had been erected in a ravine which ran thru the middle of a cornfield near Cedar Hill. They didn't count on the keen nose for lawbreakers that enabled the sheriff and his aides to smell out the still thru its camouflage of tall corn stalks. Sheriff McNaghten will take the brothers to Columbus Friday to start their penitentiary term.

C. A. Radcliffe and C. O. Beals represented the Young brothers and W. S. Dutton presented the case for the state.

Legatees Entitled to Interest.

Judge Clarence Curtin has just announced an interesting decision in the three suits brought by Ollie Chamberlain, Hale I. Lutz, and E. May Lutz, as executrix of the estate of Elmer O. Lutz, respectively, against George Steely, as sole surviving executor of the estate of Nelson Hitler, deceased.

Nelson Hitler, in his will, gave each of these persons a legacy of $12,000. Mr. Hitler died January 31, 1917, and owing to a contest of his will the estate was not settled until 1924, at which time the executor paid several legatees the principal sum of their legacies, $12,000 each, but refused to pay any interest. The legatees demanded interest and the executor defended on the ground that he should not be required to pay interest because the legatees had participated in the will contest.

Judge Curtin has decided that the legatees are entitled to interest on their several legacies, notwithstanding the fact that they participated in the will contest. Similar suits are now pending in behalf of Denny E. Phillips, Rose O. Walters, Maude E. Roof, Florence Ludwig and others, and it is expected that the decision of the court will be the same in each of these cases.

Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters represented the plaintiffs in the above case and Charles H. May represented the executor.

"Modern Conveniences"

Archaeologists have been reporting so rapidly the unearthing of temples and tombs that readers are becoming a little blasé about ancient news. So the preliminary reports on the Greek Peloponnesus of a royal tomb perhaps thirty-five hundred years old, of pieces of gold, and of materials throwing light on life in Greece nearly five thousand years ago, perhaps awakened less popular interest than it deserved.

But modern house-hunters will be glad to hear that in the dwelling section of this ancient city were found the remains of a Roman bath, with marble-lined tubs for hot and cold water. Some of the underground plumbing, says Doctor Frodin, leader of the expedition, is in such good condition that it could be used today. The old Greeks apparently could "plumb" as well as they could fight.—The Outlook.

Hindu Boy Scouts

The boy scout movement has penetrated well into India, where several good working organizations have already made themselves felt with the youth of the land. The Hindu Boy Scouts recently held an exhibit showing the results of their work in camping, pioneering, handicraft, bookbinding, carpentry, and many indoor as well as all of the outdoor arts. Strangely enough the boys have not adopted any of the Indian games for scouting games.

Close Study of Moon Soon to Be Possible

Suppose the moon started coming closer and closer to the earth until it were only ten miles away—what would it look like? We shall be able to answer this question exactly, for reports from Paris say that Prof. George W. Ritchey is now completing a telescope which will show the moon as it is if it were only ten miles distant.

The telescope will increase the observable universe millions of times, it is estimated, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, for it will make visible stars that are now 15,000 times further away than any that can be seen at present through the best telescope. The reflector of this new instrument will be 19 feet 8 inches in diameter. It required two years to build the special furnace in which the glass is being prepared.

HARTMAN THEATER.
x x x x x x x x

At last "Castles in the Air" has forsaken Chicago, where it ran for 47 weeks at the Olympic theater. With Donald Brian, Roy Copper and Virginia O'Brien at the head of the Chicago organization, this enormous musical comedy success will occupy the Hartman theater for three days beginning Thursday, November 4. Successful as it was in Chicago, "Castles in the Air" with another company, has again scored at the Selwyn theater, New York and now the whole country has extended its arms to the reigning box office triumph. In the local announcement, everybody concerned stresses the immediate success of this show in Columbus last November when it was called "Land of Romance." There were one or two minor defects in the cast at the time, but that was easily remedied and overlooked in the outstanding possessions of a gorgeous show property. Columbus was unanimous in acclaiming the now "Castles in the Air" and there were hundreds of "I told you so's" when the piece shortly afterward set Chicago on its toes. Besides Brian, Cropper and O'Brien, the Chicago organization booked here included Walter Law, Genevieve McCormick, John T. Dwyer, Betty Marvin, Dorothy Wilkins, Joseph Granby, Benedict MacQuarie, George A. Weller, John Ehrle, Cecil Butterfield, J. Harry Jenkins and Antonette Mack, all names that have first call from the big casting directors.

Presented by James W. Elliott, who as a producer has flashed high across the theatrical horizon, "Castles in the Air" is an expert combination and blend of dramatics, song and dance, made beautiful with costumes and scenery of a variety and richness heretofore seen only in the bigger revues. A great organization of 150 singers, dancers and comic folk occupies the stage. The music written by Percy Wenrich carries all the delicacy and charm that one always associates with his works, which in this case are "Land of Love," "Baby," "First Kiss," "Land of Romance" and "Latavia." Highly original and bizarre dancing effects devised by John Boyle and Julian Mitchell are afforded with a chorus of sixty or more.

Use Acid Phosphate to Increase Alfalfa

Tried With Satisfactory Results in All Cases.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers visiting the Yuma reclamation project near Bard, Calif., have been impressed with the results obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture in its investigations to determine the causes of the apparent decline in yield of alfalfa hay during the last few years. Simple fertilizer experiments indicated that where alfalfa was making unsatisfactory growth on the Yuma project acid phosphate could be used to very good advantage. Furthermore, preliminary tests indicate that seed production may be materially increased through the application of acid phosphate.

The farmers have tried acid phosphate on their own fields with satisfactory results in practically all cases that the demand for the fertilizer has increased each year. Approximately 250 tons of 16 per cent acid phosphate was sold to the project farmers in 1924. This is equivalent to 250 pounds per acre on 2,000 acres.

All the tests showed a marked improvement in the growth of alfalfa from applications of acid phosphate. There seemed to be little preference between 16 per cent and 44 per cent acid phosphate, providing equivalent quantities of phosphoric acid were applied. This being the case, says the department, it would appear that the farmer should use which ever form is the cheaper, based upon the relative proportions of this element.

Great Preventable Loss in Using Common Sires

A great preventable loss in American animal production is in the low quality of the sires used, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In no other phase of animal husbandry is it possible to make such direct, such marked, and such profitable improvement at such slight cost as in the use of superior pure bred sires.

Records of the beef-cattle breeding work at Sals-Bar farms, Jackson county, Mo., furnish examples of the value of a good bull. Common cow in calf to common bulls were purchased as foundation stock for the demonstration farm. These cows were later bred to pure-bred beef bulls. The first-class steers brought $2 a hundredweight more than the common steers.

Since the dams of the two lots were essentially the same and the methods of feeding and marketing were identical, the difference of $2 a hundredweight in their value may be fairly attributed to the superiority of the pure-bred sires used for the first cross as compared to those used on the farm from which the foundation cows were purchased.

At the average of 1,000 pounds live weight for the animals, an increase of $2 a hundredweight in the value at marketing time of the offspring of a pure-bred bull brings an increased value of $240 a year on a crop of 12 calves if it is assumed that the heifers improved equally with the steers.

Lack of Potash Cause of Poor Clover Crops

Investigations in Wisconsin have shown that one of the causes for the decline in various clover crops is lack of sufficient potash. Alfalfa and all of the clovers use large quantities of potash, and cannot do their best when there is a shortage of this element. One of the indications of potash starvation in alfalfa is tiny white spots the size of small pin heads appearing on the leaves, while the same thing in clovers is indicated by silvery yellow and brown spots.

The Wisconsin College of Agriculture, pointing out that it takes four tons of farm manure to supply the potash needed by one ton of alfalfa or clover, says that it is more economical to use a potash fertilizer than to depend upon farm manure to keep up the supply of this element. From one hundred to two hundred pounds per acre of a potash fertilizer is sufficient for clover; alfalfa requires three hundred to five hundred pounds per acre. This may be applied as a top dressing in the spring or fall after the crop is started.

Manure Allowed to Pile Up Loses Its Fertility

There is always a loss when manure is permitted to pile up—be it summer or winter. The loss in the warm months is apt to be heavier than in the case of winter-stored manure except where the latter is held with no protection from the weather. But in summer, whether manure is kept under cover or not, it is certain to lose considerable of its fertility through heating. This is a purely bacterial and chemical change. The most effective way to check it is to keep the waste slightly moistened. But better than this is to get it to the fields if possible. It is no failure in economy to fertilize grass plots which one plans to plow in the fall or following spring. If manure be applied directly to the grasses in small amounts and thinly spread no loss of fertility elements will occur. Distribution is always better than allowing the waste to pile up, although if properly protected it can be held for short periods without serious loss.

PLANS FOR MEAT TRAIN COMPLETED.

At a meeting last Thursday evening at the Farm bureau office at Circleville representatives of chamber of commerce, Rotary club, Circleville schools Business Women's club, Pickaway Live stock association, and Farm bureau completed plans for the meat train which will be in Circleville November 10. Mr. Russell G. East, agriculture agent of the Pennsylvania railroad system was in charge of the meeting.

The four cars of the train will be open for inspection from 9 a. m., to 9 p. m. Pupils of the seventh and eighth grades, of the high school of Circleville will visit the train in groups in the morning, under the supervision of Professor J. O. Eagleson. The county school will also visit the train in the forenoon under the supervision of Superintendent M. C. Warren. In the afternoon from two to 9 o'clock housewives of Pickaway county will have the opportunity of visiting the train and hearing lectures on preparation and cuts of meats.

The first car will contain livestock ready for market. Second car will contain cuts of meat such as is found in livestock exhibited. In the third car, two of our local butchers, Beck Brothers and Charles H. Smith will furnish sides of meat and meat cutters who will show the different cuts of meat which can be secured from one side of meat. The relation of fat to palatability will also be shown in this car. In the fourth car demonstrations, lectures and preparation of meats will be conducted. The educational value both to producer and consumer is declared to be of greater value than any demonstration train heretofore conducted.

Farmers and their wives, townsmen and their wives, children of the seventh and eighth grade and high school will alike find much educational value in this train.

Everyone is invited.

CRUEL SLAYING OF ROOKS CONDEMNED

The London Morning Post weeps over the destruction of England's rooks (a bird somewhat like our crow) in much the same fashion as do certain of our publications.

The annual massacre of the young rooks has begun, not because of any particular harm which they do but simply because it is the custom to pot the young birds at this season. The better element of sportsmen lament this foolish and cruel custom of destroying birds which are more a friend than an enemy to the farmer. Rooks are very largely insectivorous, and they destroy myriads of insects and grubs which would otherwise live to do serious damage to growing and ripening crops.

The rook is the only bird whose young are so ruthlessly shot in the breeding season; and it is a pitiable sight to see the parent birds hovering amid a hail of whizzing pellets, over the mutilated bodies of their dying offspring.

The Post believes that custom and prejudice alone can excuse a barbarity which has outlived all decency, and is as horrible as the much-condemned pigeon shooting at Monte Carlo. A bill to protect this friend of the farmer is long overdue.

Assassination of Mansfield Reformatory Guard.

Mansfield, Nov. 2.—(U.P.)—Urban Wolford, 70 year-old guard at the Mansfield reformatory was believed dying this afternoon from gun shot wounds received when fired on by an unidentified gunman today.

Wolford was standing at the west tower of the reformatory when the gunman jumped from an automobile, fired three shots at him and escaped. One bullet penetrated his shoulder, the second entered his hand. The third shot went wild.

A trusty hearing the shooting arrived in time to leap on the running board of the moving automobile. Two men in the automobile attacked him and threw him from the car as it was traveling at a high speed.

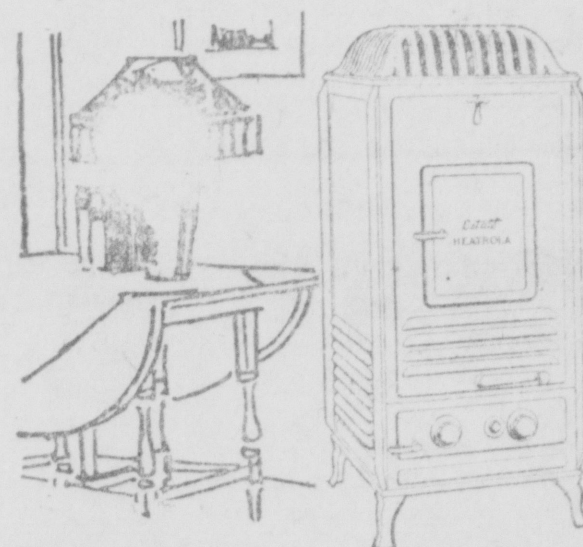

Authorities said the license for the automobile was issued to a Shelby, O., man.

Vienna Theatergoers

Put Shakespeare First

A referendum of the 2,000 yearly subscribers to the State Drama (Burgtheater) in Vienna, placed Shakespeare first in the list of favorites of the serious theater-going public.

The plays voted for the next season were "A Midsummer Night's Dream,"
"The Merchant of Venice," "Macbeth," "Coriolanus," and "The Taming of the Shrew." Oscar Wilde was returned second, notably with his "Lady Windermere's Fan," while Schiller, Ibsen, Schmitzler, Rostand, Hebbel and Grill-parzer follow in the list.

Shakespeare and Wilde between them obtained 1,219 of the 2,000 votes cast.

Educational Argument

In the rural districts of England, where children have always gone to work in the fields, compulsory education is looked upon with a good deal of disfavor. The Argonaut says that during an election a candidate for parliamentary honors was addressing a meeting of Yorkshire men when he was interrupted by a man who asked:
"Art in favor o' childer goin' t' school, till they be sixteen?"
"Certainly I am," said the speaker.
"Well, in not," was the emphatic answer. "I'm noone goin' to 'ave my lad comin' whoam fro' t'school an' axin' me for money for a shave."—Youth's lowing officers were elected: Worship-

Lightning Protection

The world's ablest engineers have never found ways to prevent lightning from "striking," but they are able to prevent it from damaging a city's electric system. Power companies know how to protect their lines with heavy insulation and with lightning arresters of sufficient capacity to deflect a "stroke" to the ground before it has created any havoc along the wires.
Also they sectionalize every system so that should a bolt strike any part of it, the remainder will be unaffected.
These are the reasons why the electric light wires leading into a house are not a menace during a storm.

Lead for Cancer

Out of 227 "hopeless" cases, 30 have had no recurrence of cancer after treatment with lead, according to an Edinburgh hospital authority. Lead salt injections are poisonous, however, and an effort is being made to find a lead colloid that will not have poisonous results. The 30 cases reported cured showed no effects of lead poisoning.

Successful

"How did your wife come out with her job of painting the car?" we inter-estedly inquired.

"Fine!" enthusiastically replied the husband of the paint sifter. "It was a complete success! Why, the old boat doesn't look any worse now than it did before she began."—Kansas City

Elephants Plant Trees

Three circus elephants that were trained in nursery work in India a number of years ago recently helped to plant 100 large trees in Central park, New York. The trees, ranging from 35 to 45 feet, were planted close to the Memorial grove.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Rainmaker," Paramount's mighty love-drama is the feature scheduled for a showing Thursday and Friday. Clarence Badger directed the picture, which Hope Loring and Louis D. Lighton adapted from the magazine serial, "Heavenbent" by Gerald Beaumont. The cast is one of the pro-duction's important assets, including as it does such screen favorites as Ernest Torrence, William Collier Jr., and Georgia Hale, who had the feminine lead opposite Charles Chaplin in
"The Gold Rush."

"The Rainmaker" may be picturesquely described as the story of a jockey and a dance hall girl, runners on Life's race track, against whom the opening odds are heavy. Each overcomes a bad start, runs fair and true for a little while, then weakens and falls back into the rack. Their final race is run in a little border town where the sky is the limit and anything can happen and does happen!

William Collier Jr., portrays the jockey, whose usefulness as such comes to an abrupt end when he is severely injured in a thrilling race.
Georgia Hale, is the ex-dance hall girl who nurses him back to life. The romance of these two works itself out in a little southwest border town where they meet again—the boy now a racetrack hanger on, popularly known as "The Rainmaker" because of his apparent ability to call forth rain any time he pleases; the girl back at her old job as a dance hall entertainer.
Torrence is the dance hall owner.

What happens when the town is stricken by a plague and the spectacular manner in which the jockey justifies his title of "The Rainmaker" from the largest and most exciting part of the picture.

Valuable Medallion

Presented to F. L. Maytag by Governor John Hammill, of Iowa.

F. L. Maytag, chairman of the board of the Maytag company of Newton, Iowa, washing machine manufacturers is the proud possessor of what is said to be the largest and costliest gold medallion in the world, valued at $50,000.

Governor John Hammill, of Iowa, presented the medallion to Mr. Maytag recently at a banquet held at the Hotel Savery, Des Moines. The banquet was attended by 380 members of the Maytag sales organization from all parts of the United States. The Medallion was a gift from the Home Appliance Merchants of America and was given in recognition of Mr. May-tag's position as a manufacturer and merchandise of electrical appliances.

Governor Hammill lauded Mr. Maytag in his speech as one of the outstanding citizens of Iowa and as a man who has done more than any other man in the state to advance the electrical industry. The governor referred to Mr. Maytag's loyalty to Iowa, his loyalty to the industry he represented and to his efforts to build up the electrical business in the United States.

Mr. Maytag in his response expressed his pleasure at the honor conferred upon him. He referred to the medal as a precious gift which would always be a reminder of those who gave it and always prove an incentive to him for future endeavor.

The banquet was the climax of a convention of Maytag dealers from all parts of the United States. The convention itself was held in Newton, Iowa and all of the dealers were transported by special trains to Des-Moines where the presentation of the medallion took place. Governor Ham-mill, who has been a life long friend of Mr. Maytag, presented the medallion just before the banquet and both men received a rousing reception at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

Among the other speakers on the program were John P. Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, one of the men who is leading the battle before congress for better conditions for the farmers; M. C. Meigs of the Chicago Herald & Examiner; and Carl Helbron, of San Diego, California.

The great factory of the Maytag company at Newton, Iowa, is the large-est and most complete washing machine factory in the world, with a daily output of 1,250 washers. This figure will be increased to 1,600 machines per day upon the completion of additional buildings now under construction.

Park Has Indian Name

"Kalbab," the name of one of the national forests, is a Piute Indian word meaning "mountain lying down."
It is a vast plateau, 50 miles long and 35 miles wide. It contains 500 square miles of yellow pine, fir, spruce and aspen. This is said to be the largest virgin forest in the United States.

Here Is a Mystery

In passing through a Sahara forest it was noted that the older plants are dotted with woodpecker holes, and yet few woodpeckers are to be seen, says the Nature Magazine. Some of these holes may have been made a century ago, for this cactus protects itself from infection by forming a hard and impervious callous around these nests.

Whoever named it the "funny bone" had a mighty poor sense of humor.

The Monday club presents the Chillicothe chorus at the Memorial hall tonight. 4novd1.

PROPER WASHING OF AUTOMOBILES

Oil Should Be Changed Frequently and the Chassis Kept Clean.

Automobile owners, almost without exception, are leaching that so far as their motor car is concerned the most profitable investment that they can make is regular attention in the matter of inspection, washing, oiling and greasing.

For years the manufacturers have been carrying on a campaign of education trying to make the user realize that he could not expect the most satisfactory service from the car he bought unless he took the pains to see that it had regular attention. Service stations, salesmen and in fact every one connected with the trade, brought the matter to the owner's attention every time the occasion presented itself. Unfortunately this valuable information was accepted with a grain of salt and it was not until the owner himself or someone with whom he was intimately acquainted incurred a large repair bill brought on by lack of care to the machine that the fact was driven home that attention was a good investment.

Reason for Neglect.

Perhaps the principal reason why the average owner heretofore has neglected giving his car the attention it should have was because he felt that he could not spare the machine. That, from an automobile dealers' standpoint sounded well for it made him feel that the motor vehicle had at last taken its place in the sun, but it was not the real truth. Any man, no matter how busy he is, can so arrange his day's work that he can manage to get along without the use of his machine for a few hours. Were it absolutely necessary for him to have automotive transportation it would be economy to hire a taxicab.

It is not the amount of work that must be done on a machine when it is brought to the service station that is the big factor. It is the systematic inspection of the car, the little adjusting here and tightening there, which is the proverbial stitch in time, that counts.

Change Oil Frequently.

Oil should be changed at frequent intervals and the car itself should be thoroughly lubricated at stated intervals. Some owners have their oil changed and their car lubricated once a month, while still more do the work every so many hundred miles. Most oil companies recommend the changing of oil every 500 miles and motor car manufacturers concur in this recommendation. About every 1,000 miles the car should be lubricated and every 2,500 miles it is not a bad idea to examine the transmission and differential to see if they need the addition of any more grease. Ordinarily they will not, but it only takes a minute to find out. Cars frequently washed have the dirt and grime removed from around the spring shackles and brake drums, permitting them to function more efficiently, not to mention the fact that a clean car always looks better and the finish will last longer.

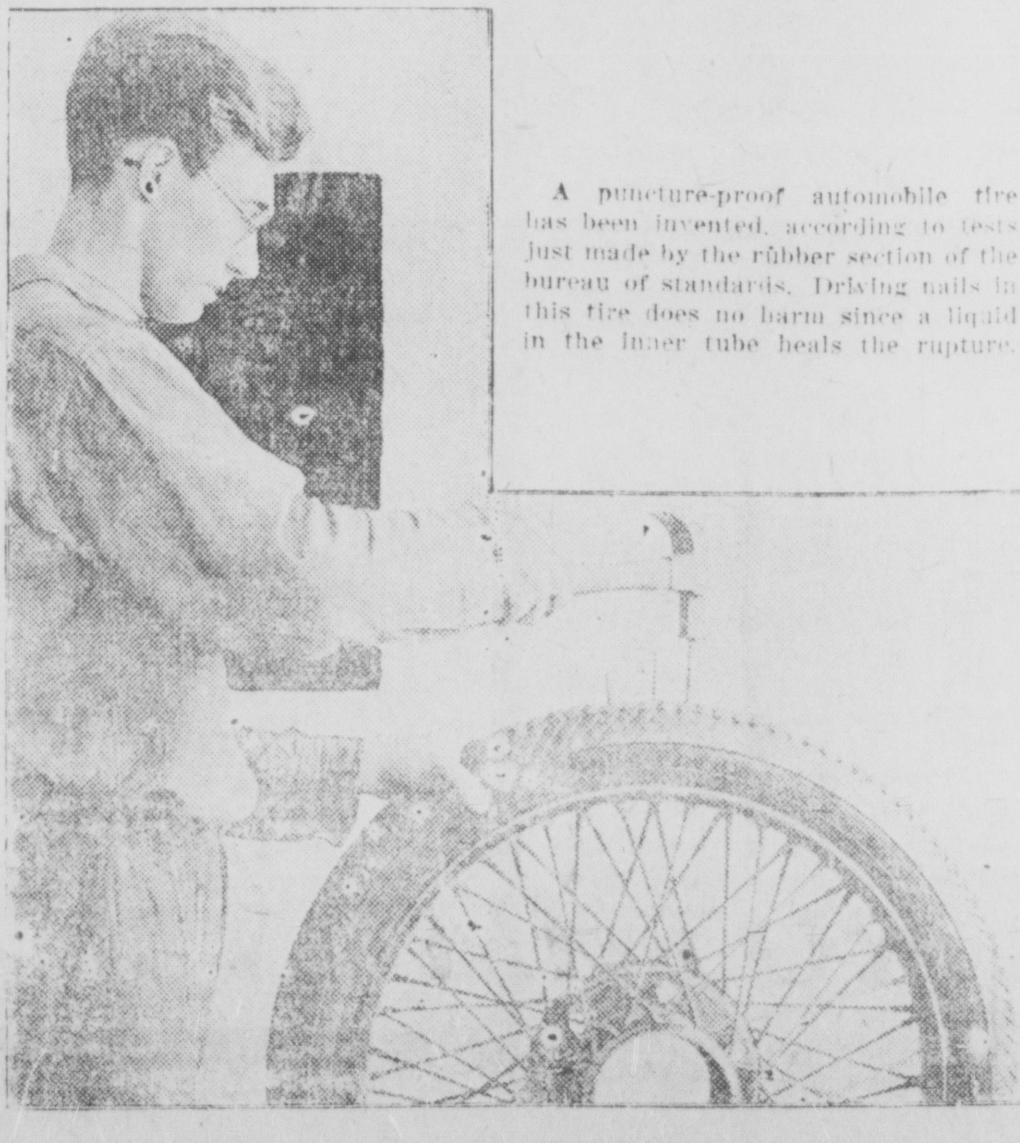

Watch Gas Line Close to Prevent Tank Overflow

Gasoline tanks usually overflow because no provision is made for allowing the air to expel as the gas is pumped in.

This usually can be avoided by seeing that the nozzle isn't jammed down into the neck of the tank, but another precaution is advisable where the neck is provided with a special section to act as an air vent. In this type of neck there will be two divisions, one very much larger than the other. Make sure that the nozzle directs the gasoline into the larger one, otherwise ingoing gasoline and outgoing air will meet and cause an overflow of the former.

AUTOMOBILE TIRE IS PUNCTURE PROOF

A puncture-proof automobile tire has been invented, according to tests just made by the rubber section of the bureau of standards. Driving nails in this tire does no harm since a liquid in the inner tube heals the rupture.

Battery Suggestions

The storage battery is the electrical bank account of your car. You deposit or draw.

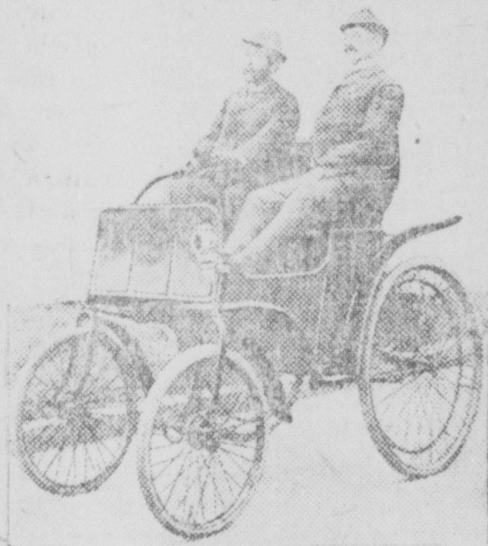

A good pair of headlights may discharge the battery in 12 hours. To replace this current you would probably have to drive the car eight hours at 20 miles an hour.

An average winter cranking will consume enough current to require from six to ten miles' driving to replace it.

An overdrawn battery account is apt to cause mental and physical comfort.

The liquid in a fully charged battery will stand below zero temperatures. In a discharged battery it will freeze at much higher temperatures. The liquid should be kept well above the plates. Offer the battery a drink at least once every two weeks, but, in cold weather, only just before a run. Water added to the battery will mix only when the battery is charging or discharging. Before such mixing it is just clear water and will freeze at 32 degrees.

Automobile Parade Held in Philadelphia in 1900

Here is a photo that seems funny today, but which will bring back a lot of memories to the older folks. It shows a speedster, which was entered in the first auto parade held in Philadelphia on October 6, 1900. This contraption is quite a contrast to the automobile of today.

Helpful Points to Keep Tires in Good Condition

For the benefit of motorists who store their cars during the winter, the following suggestions are made by the manager of a tire company on storing tires so that they may be found in good condition for the next touring season:

- Wash the tire carefully on the outside to remove oil and other harmful substances.
- Store in a cool, dry place, away from light. Heat, light and moisture are enemies of rubber.
- Cold has no bad effect on tires, but they should be properly housed.
- If tires are left on the car, jack up the car, deflate the tires, and wrap them in covers.
- Don't let the car stand on tires all winter. To do so means weakening them in the parts that rest on the floor.

Motor Should Be Wiped Dry Before It Is Stored

If a car is not wiped dry with a chamois when coming in out of the wet, the following morning will reveal what parts of car suffer most when water is allowed to remain and dry overnight. It will be found that the greatest damage occurs where drops of water remain stationary until they are dry, as on the hood, window sills, cowl and deck. Often the doors and fenders will dry off with only a slight dullness to tell of the drenching of the night before. This inspection may be an opportunity to learn what can be neglected in case there is not time to go all over the car.

Second Visitor—I know. Didn't you hear her say when she passed them around, "Take your pick?"

Borrowed, Too

"You gotta admit that I've got the manners of a gentleman."

"Well, I suppose they were borrowed, too."

FORD ANNOUNCES NEW COLORS INCREASED MILEAGE SECURED THRU NEW CARBURETOR SYSTEM.

WIRE WHEELS ADDED TO FORDOR.

The five new colors on the Improved Ford cars were in evidence at the Automobile show feature of the Pumpkin Show and since that time comes the announcement that Ford Improved welded Wire Wheels are standard equipment on the Fordor sedan.

The colors are finished in the newest Pyroxylin lacquer, which is unharmed by extreme temperatures, mud snow or ice. All cars have balloon tires which require only the use of bare hands to remove after loosening valve stem.

The installation of the Holley Vapor or as standard equipment at no additional cost is responsible for easier starting. Improved acceleration, added mileage and more even power at low motor speeds. New purchasers here in Circleville report very much improved hill climbing ability on cars equipped with the new carburetor. At Laurelville the Citizens Telephone company improved the performance of four miles more to the gallon of gasoline on an old ton truck by the installation of one of the Holley Vaporizers.

The new color combinations are: Royal Maroon, Gunmetal Blue, Highland Green, Phoenix Brown and Fawn Gray. Anyone who did not have the opportunity of seeing these cars at the Automobile show of the Pumpkin Show can see them at the local salesroom of R. L. Brehmer.

Lesson for November 7

THE FALL OF JERICO

LESSON TEXT—Josh. 6:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—This is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joshua Leads His People to Victory.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Victory of Jericho.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Helped Joshua.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overcoming by Faith.

Jericho was the key to the land of Canaan. A signal victory here would put the Israelites in control of the land. Failure here would mean irretrievable ruin.

I. Jericho Shut Up (vv. 1-5).

The Canaanites felt secure because Jericho was strongly fortified from the south. Approach to the city from the east was not thought of as the Jordan river was a barrier. The miraculous crossing of the Jordan by the Israelites and their surrounding the city of Jericho greatly alarmed the people—"Therefore none went out and none came in."

1. God's promise to Joshua (v. 2).
"I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour." Because of this promise from the Lord their faith had a firm basis.

2. God's instructions (vv. 3-5).
They were to encompass the city with seven priests bearing trumpets of rams' horns. The ark, a symbol of the Divine Presence, went before the people. They encompassed the city once a day for six days and on the seventh day they encompassed it seven times. When the last circuit was made the priests were to give a long blast of the trumpets and the people were to shout with a great shout and the walls of Jericho were to fall down.

II. The Obedience of the People (vv. 6-16).

They advanced according to the directions of their leader, for they were going forth according to the command of the Lord. To the natural eye the means employed were very inadequate, even foolish. If they had looked at the inadequacy of the means in themselves, they no doubt would have faltered, but they believed that He who had given the orders would fight for them. Joshua and his people set out at once to obey the divine directions. The people marched around the city every day for six days. This, no doubt, was very trying to their faith. There was absolutely no connection between the means and the end. Perhaps as the days wore wearily away the whole affair became monotonous. Even at the end of the sixth day there was no change. Doubtless the people on the walls of the city used this unseemly behavior as an occasion of great merriment and ridicule. Even at the end of the sixth round on the seventh day there was no change. Yea, the seventh round brought no change until the very last moment. At the mighty shout, accompanied with the blowing of trumpets, the walls came tumbling down. This is the way of all works accomplished by faith. At the time when everything seems against us, faith holds on and wins the victory.

III. The Fall of Jericho (vv. 17-20).

At the end of the seventh day the seventh round having been made of the city, the long silence was broken with a shout. As the walls crumbled down, the Israelites clambered over them, slaying men, women and children. They were not to spare anything save the gold, silver, brass and iron which were to be saved for the treasury of the Lord. However, Rahab and her household were saved according to the promise of the spies. This wonderful deliverance was calculated to inspire the people with courage and enthusiasm. They could now see how God could fight for them and deliver them from their enemies. Also, it would strike terror in the hearts of the Canaanites. The blowing of the trumpets and shouting of that day with its great victory is typical of the greater day when larger victories shall be won by the Almighty for His people, and even greater consolation will be struck into the hearts of the enemies of God's people (1 Thess. 4:16, 17).

Let us learn of this whole lesson that spiritual victories are won upon principles and by means which are not sufficient in themselves. According to human wisdom it is utter foolishness (1 Cor. 1:17-29).

ANOTHER ACCOUNT

Of High School Foot Ball Game Monday Afternoon.

We don't know a whole lot about foot ball, but the game Monday between Circleville and Frankfort would inspire anyone to write something halfway intelligent, for it was a real game.

Frankfort was first on the field, and the team looked big and formidable. They proved to be just that. The first minutes of the game showed the teams to be evenly matched, both on the defensive and offensive—both lines held and plays were broken up with great skill, and few first downs were made. Circleville kicked off to Frankfort who opened up a bag of tricks that netted them some nice gains. But Circleville soon blew up their sacks and they were forced to kick. With the ball in our possession, in a short time, long-legged Weaver got away for a fifty yard run to the 15 yard line. Wallace went in for Bales. The ball was fumbled on the next play, and Frankfort recovered. They tried end runs with a snappy criss cross formation, but every man on our team was on his toes, and Haswell and McCrady repeatedly broke through and tackled the ball carriers.

Frankfort punted to Peters who was downed with no gain and half of Frankfort's team on his head.

In the beginning of the second quarter, Circleville recovered a blocked punt, and tried for a field goal, which went wide. Once Frankfort got away for a nasty run but was finally downed by Maloney, a few yards from the goal—but a few yards was enough, and Maloney had saved the day. And while we held Frankfort for three downs the half ended.

In the second half Circleville opened up a forward passing attack which kept Frankfort humping, but we were forced to kick. Then Frankfort had us chasing them awhile, as they gained 15 yards with a forward pass down the side line. Mallow wandered up and down the line and was finally tackled. Then Haswell's bicep reached out and spoiled a pass for third down. On a trick play they made 3 but lost the ball.

We started a mighty effort to make a touchdown, but we were held for downs, and kicked to Frankfort whose pass was neatly intercepted by Wallace. On the third down, a pass, Wallace to Maloney, was perfect for a fine start toward a touchdown. Peters eluded the entire team for another big gain. Watson made 5 yards and first down. They were stopped with small gain for three downs, and on the fourth, by a wise little quarterback sneak, Heiskell went over for the only touchdown of the game. Peters kicked goal.

After this score Frankfort began some desperate passing—one was good for 20 yards, but the time was too short. And after three attempts and a penalty, the game ended.

NEW CLEW FOUND

IN MURDER CASE

Toledo, No. 2.—(U.P.)—Investigators found a clew today which may lead to the arrest of the murderer of Miss Lily Croy, whose body was found in the yard of Washington school on the night of Oct. 25.

A man whose hands were soaked with blood boarded a Long Belt street car near the scene of the murder the night of the murder. He left the car somewhere in the vicinity of Adams and Summit streets.

Albert J. Renault, conductor of the Long Belt car, told of seeing the suspect.

"The man bought three tickets," Renault said, "and when I gave them to him I noticed that both hands were covered with blood. The cuffs of his coat were bloodstained and what I could see of his wrists also were stained."

Authorization to purchase 10 autos for use of the police department was given Safety Director Arthur D. Hill by city council Monday night in an ordinance introduced by Mayor Fred J. Mery as an emergency measure. The machines will be manned by policemen for night patrol duty throughout the city to break up the crime wave and thwart attacks upon women.

"N-no, sir," stammered the caddy. "Then who are you laughing at?"

"Your opponent, sir."

"Oh, I see," said the golfer, somewhat mollified. "But what's so funny about him?"

"Well, sir," replied the caddy, cautiously, "he plays exactly like you do."—Tit-Bits.

REAL CHRISTMAS "CHEER"

Is To Be Very Scarce This Year According To Prohibition Officials.

By Joseph S. Wasney, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Moonshine, homebrew and industrial alcohol concoctions will be practically the only bootleg wares available for the coming holiday seasons, prohibition officials said today, basing their predictions on effective anti-smuggling operations of dry sleuths.

There is very little genuine liquor now being sold, according to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews. Some smuggled rum is still entering the country but it is being "cut" almost beyond recognition.

Prohibition headquarters made public a survey of liquor conditions in the country thus:

Halifax, once the haven of rum runners, is now practically clear of their ships. Where there were about 300 liquor vessels hovering off the Atlantic coast two years ago, there are today less than six waiting to slip past coast guard patrol boats.

Florida, the gulf states and the Detroit sector are the only acknowledged "wet" spots now, which attract rum runners, it was stated, and dry authorities have mapped a campaign to improve conditions in these sections.

The coast guard now has an almost air tight blockade along the Atlantic coast, while on the Pacific coast conditions are almost as encouraging, Andrews said.

The dry navy base at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., reported the capture of seven speed boats loaded with 2,100 cases of rum for Hallowe'en celebrations, from the West Indies.

During the first six months this year capture netted 66,000 cases and since then the average seizure has been 364 cases a week. Last year the dry navy confiscated more than 131,000 cases of liquor, indicating, authorities said, that smugglers are less active now.

Women Smokers Barred

THE AMERICAN LEGION

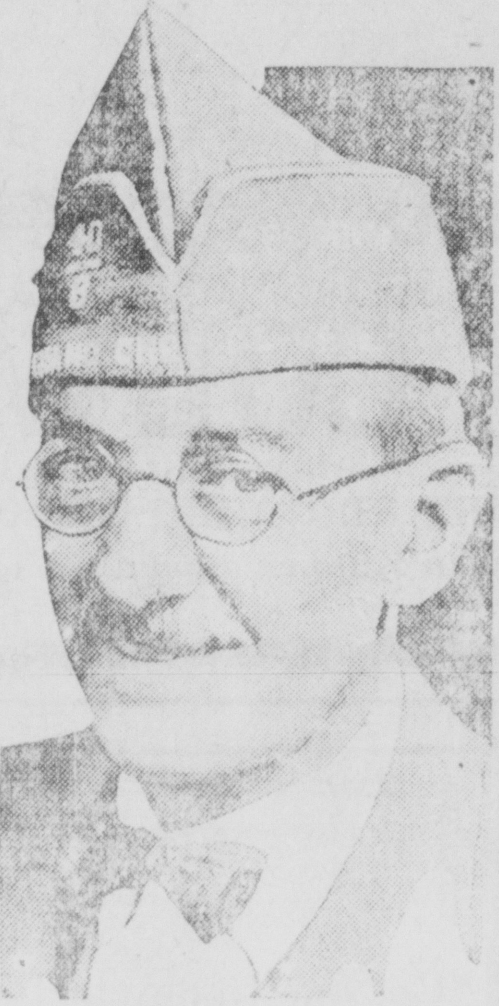

40 AND 8 TO AID AMERICAN LEGION

To forward the interests of the American Legion in every way possible is the one policy of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux for the coming year, it was announced following the seventh national promenade of the Legion fun makers at Philadelphia. Charles A. Mills of Miami, Fla., was elected Chief de Chemin de Fer (national commander) during the promenade to succeed S. M. "Larry" Doyle, of Glendive, Mont.

The new Chief de Chemin de Fer is a native of Jersey City, N. J., but is now engaged in business in Miami. He is forty-four years old.

Mills enrolled as a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve force before the United States entered the World war. He received orders for mobilization April 3, 1917, and was ordered to duty as commander, second section, seventh naval district. He now holds the rank of lieutenant commander in the naval reserve.

Joining Harvey W. Seeds post of Miami in 1919, Mills has been active in the Legion since its start. He served as post commander in 1923 and on the department executive committee in 1924-25. He became identified with the 40 and 8 in 1923 when he joined Vulture Locale No. 492 at Miami. In 1924 he served as Chief de Gare, was elected a member of the Grande Cheminot and was appointed to fill an unexpired term as Grand Chief de Gare. In 1925 he was elected Grand Chief de Gare and at the national promenade that year was elected Sous Chief de Chemin de Fer.

With Mills at the Philadelphia promenade were elected six Sous Chefs de Chemin de Fer (national vice commanders) as follows: Spencer S. Eccles of Logan, Utah; William St. George Bissell of New York; A. Squillacioti of Boston; Dr. David Townsend of Johnson City, Tenn.; Frank W. Koe of Chicago; and Harry J. Hinek of Minneapolis. N. Carl Nielsen of Seattle, Wash., was re-elected Commissaire Intendant National (national treasurer), and Charles W. Ardery of Indianapolis was reappointed Correspondant National (national secretary).

Other officers named at the national promenade include S. C. "Fish" Crockett of Montgomery, Ala., Conducteur National; Harry Cochran of Litchfield, Ind., and Dr. J. Wyckoff of Merchantville, N. J., Gardes de la Porte Nationaux; Paul J. McGahan of Washington, D. C., Historien National; Rev. Fr. Edward J. Gracey of Cleveland, Ammonier National; Sedley Peck of Paris, Commis Voyageur; and John P. Conmy of Fargo, N. D., Avocat National.

The 40 and 8 decided to place at the disposal of the child welfare division of the Legion a working fund of not less than $2,000 to be used solely for the purpose of caring for orphans or semi-orphans of World war veterans in homes, whether with their mothers, relatives or in foster boarding homes. The fund is to be replenished when necessary. Funds for the child welfare work are derived from an annual assessment of 50 cents per member.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Often Caused by Bladder Weakness. It's Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead." A. C. Eckhart, 2917 St. Clair St., Cleveland, Ohio, says: "After taking the tablets for one week, the burning and smarting left me, and with no desire to get up nights. You should get the credit as I had tried many things. I will be glad to write my experiences to any one. Lithiated Bicarb. weakens the bladder as opium suits do the bowels, driving out deposits, neutralizes excess acids, thereby relieving irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2 cents each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio."

The Borrowed Shoes

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

"I DO think you might," Felicia whined. "Seeing you're not going—not even invited—besides, the shoes are too long for you."

"All which, though true, has nothing to do with the case," Sandy retorted, her nose very high. "I would have been invited but for your lie—you told the Clarks I didn't dance."

"I—I didn't! Who told you? They lied," Felicia cried weakly, her voice betraying terror. "All I said was your mother never wanted you dance."

"But not a word that she did," Sandy burst out, sparks in her eyes. "But we're wastin' breath that can be better spent. Mine in saying you shan't wear my black satin pumps—not for ever—turn 'em up."

Sandy—properly Alexandria Semmes—was semi-private secretary to Banker Lawrence, going in and out eight times daily by help of the trolley. She loved to dance, better than to dream of a possible Prince Charming. And she did often alone, timed by a neighbor's radio, in the dusk of her big room with all the windows wide. If she had said so, folks would have looked askance—even without that they were given to saying behind the and how queer she was. How very queer. Yet, oddly, she was better liked than Felicia, who by influence of generally named out loud—being ecclesiastical or political—led in public pastures, seeking always the most money for the least work.

In their small-girlhood Sandy had disliked her tepidly. Now that they were rising twenty, dislike had changed into blazing contempt. The affair of the dance and the shoes was typical—she determined to wear the pumps to rags, as soon as she knew of Sandy's misfitting gift. It might better have come to her. The sender, an old teacher gone higher in the school machine, had written with the parcel: "Too long, I know, dear Sandy—but so slim and soft, they deserve to be seen on your beautiful feet."

Felicia went to the party—in borrowed shoes, rather than miss it. Too narrow, too long, her heels were blistered by their slipping up. But that didn't hurt half so much as the fact that they split up and down the middle—which meant putting a new pair in place of them. Fifteen dollars was an awful price to pay, even for dancing with all the best partners. Sandy should pay much more than that—else Felicia would know the reason why. She began seditiously to cultivate Mrs. Lawrence, who was as good as she was beautiful, and guileless to the edge of imbecility. Presently she was hearing—of course told regretfully—the tale of Sandy's wickedness. Did Mrs. Lawrence feel it right to have her husband subjected to such influences? Mrs. Lawrence sighed deeply, blushed and said vaguely she trusted Elbridge as she did her God. But next week, Felicia danced for joy—for Sandy's desk in the bank had a new occupant—and Sandy herself had vanished.

Also and further Mrs. Lawrence had been more than kind—taking Felicia in her car all about the country, on her speaking tours. Sandy wasn't mentioned.

So time, ambuling withal, brought another holiday imminent. Felicia somehow felt that the feast would mark a climax in her affairs. Banker Lawrence had said rather pointedly that there needed to be changes in country affairs. She had never managed to get really acquainted with him—but his wife's kindness more than made up for that. Of course they might ask her to the holiday dinner—Mrs. Lawrence had spoken vaguely of a possible absence. But nothing was settled—it was a happy hopeful Felicia that breezed into the country offices bright but not too early the Monday morning of that week. She found the men there twitting the women greatly. The friendliest of them fought with the unfriendliest to tell the news. Willard Lawrence, sole heir to the banker, was fetching home a wife—and who should that wife be but Sandy Semmes!

Luck! Pure, blind, bull luck! Nothing else. Son Willard had a scientific complex—a very robust one—he had taxed his eyes till blindness threatened just when there was required the most difficult, the most accurate, the most tedious calculation—for which his father had chosen Sandy, sending them away to a seaside home where, in a darkened room, young Willard could listen to the results. Sandy read him. Outside, a noted mathematician checked them—and found never a flaw. She had made the tedious job a labor of love—in result she had won the love of her employer. They had been married a month—with full parental approval—of course she'd never go back to the bank—but think of her queening it there at the Lawrence house. Felicia waited to hear no more. Instead she made haste to write her resignation, ask an invitation to visit a distant cousin—and there to decide that in other state and county gave better scope for her abilities—a decision never challenged by those who had been

Sifted Opinions

Think ye are men, deem it not impossible for you to err; sift impartially your own hearts, whether it be force or reason or vehemence of affection, which hath bred and still doth feed these opinions in you. If truth do anywhere manifest itself, seek not to smother it with glossing delusions, acknowledge the greatness thereof, and think it your best victory when the same doth prevail over you.—Richard Hooker.
